The Federal Clean Air Act (CAA) requires certain sources in ozone non-attainment areas to implement control methods called reasonably available control technology (RACT). The RACT requirement is meant to ensure that all moderate and above nonattainment areas, have in place RACT for all source categories covered by a CTG document and for major sources that are not subject to a CTG. There are no sources in the San Joaquin Valley subject to this RACT requirement. As such, staff the requirement to adopt a rule for those sources is no longer applicable. Therefore, staff is proposing a negative declaration for this CTG.
